

Monday Message

June 24, 2024

Dear all,

As you likely recall, when we were navigating college operations during the pandemic, our safety protocols limited gatherings, and as a result we were not able to make our facilities available for community events or conferences. Since moving forward from pandemic-related restrictions, we have seen increased interest, from both inside and outside the institution, associated with hosting events, meetings, and conferences. This week, for example, women's basketball, men's basketball, tennis and track and field will be hosting camps, lessons, or tournaments. American Legion Baseball will have its tournament at Harris Field. As mentioned last week, a campus preview event for new fall 2024 students is scheduled on Thursday. Dr. Ken Wareham from the Division of Teacher Education and Mathematics will be hosting iSTEM, a professional development conference designed to educate teachers on how to teach STEM concepts through gamification and hands-on demonstrations. Drs. Rachel Jameton and Royal Toy will be leading 60 elementary students, fifteen middle and high school students, and four K-12 teachers for a weeklong program called "Camp Invention." This is the sixth time in the last decade LC State has been a host site for this program. Camp Invention is focused on teaching kids how to brainstorm, design, and problem-solve creatively.

Ultimately, our goal as we grow camps, clinics, and conferences, combined with our monthly summer concert series, is to broadly share the beauty and vibrancy of our campus all year long.

Cynthia Pemberton, Ed.D.
President
